Male External Catheters

Uro-Con® "Texas-Style" Catheters

These male external catheters are commonly referred to as a "Texas-Style" because they employ a three-piece construction technique.

Each Uro-Con® catheter has a thin, latex sheath similar to a condom—which is rolled over the head and shaft of the penis—and is attached by an plastic catheter insert to a 2" (5cm) from where urine is drained into a bag or other collection device. Using a "Condom" type natural latex sheath makes these catheters "fully collapsible" to prevent pooled urine; a major cause of skin irritation and break-down.

our largest in 5mm increments to suit a variety of individual requirements. They are packaged individually in a window pouch allowing for quick, easy product identification without opening the pouch. The back side of the pouch contains detailed, illustrated, application instructions relative to the product purchased—no "cookie-cutter" or "one fits all" instructions for all products like some similar products have.

Each catheter may be secured using several different or a combination of methods depending on individual requirements for maximum comfort and security. The product insert included with every box lists a variety of these methods and provides detailed, illustrated, application instructions.

Depending on the item purchased, Uro-Cath® male external catheters may also be packaged with adhesive foam strips or protective skin barrier wipes—see chart below for item numbers. For additional information on these products see Urofoam® Adhesive Foam Strips or Uro-Prep® Protective Skin Barrier Wipes.
